CHIEF CRAZY SNAKE READY TO SURRENDER

sends White Flag to Commander of State Troops.

But Wants Guarantee of Fair Treatment.

Sheriff is Pleased and Will Assure Creek Leader of Fair Trial and Protection -Happy End of What Looked Like a Nasty headquarters with a prace pipe. Crazy Snake is anxious to feel rip of his teeth on the stem of sace pipe. So goes the message, how want surrender to y'u," Thompson to the sheriff. Then hompson to the sheriff. Then ained that the chief was ready give himself up to the soldiers if uld guarantee fair treatment.

Oram is pleased, the soldlers ased, and the peace terms will e made. Sheriff Oram assured Thompon that Crazy Snake would be given fair trial if he wou'd g've himself p. Then the envoy rode back to the mdian camp.

Thempeon told the chief's rise of the tory of the killing of Odum and Baum jaturday. Crazy Snake, the envoy sid, was in the cabin when the deadly iring began. The chief claims that ie took part in it and he fired his own tile at the officers. But he says he hot in self-defense. It was Sher fi dum's son who was k'iled Saturday when the clash occurred and the she lift was moved as Thompson related the hief's solemn declaration that he had not killed the officer's son and d occurred.

Mim no shoot white man's son. Him shoot, till had to," said Thompson.

declared that the deputies rode up the house and opened fire the bulse endangering those within. It was in, he said, the Indians in-id-thrus' fir guns through the window and d. It was not until the soldiers were to their track that the o'd chief at their track that the o'd chief d that he would be kil'ed and that and would he wiped out that he ated from his home, burning his and fleeing to where he has camped. It was reported that an n had fallen and was burned in house. The officers believe how-that the Indian was taken away. Ishoma City, Okla., March 30.— a is an unconfirmed report that if. Patty, one of the officers en-d in the Indian hunt at Hickory the town nearest the place the Indians have been camped. deserted to-day. The residents after dark last night and they not yet returned in arite of Snake's offer to surrender. not yet returned in arite of y Snake's offer to surrender.

In after the white men 'iving there ashore here. The week's comparaial disappeared in the woods going in he direction of Checotah, twenty Indan horsemen rode through the town. The Indians were seen later on the toad outside the village. Late last light a house west of Pierce was burned. It is thought the fire was started with the Indians.

EIGHT KILLED AND MANY INJURED IN DYNAMITE EXPLOSION

fere Thawing Explosive - All the lajured Were Foreigners.

chillicothe, March 30.—Eight men the filled and a number injured as a result of an explosion of 800 pounds ordynamite near Pride, this county, play. The men were engaged in his wing out the dynamite. It was appead and on stick and catching fire. It is a speed and on stick and catching fire diphe double tracking of the Norfolk. Western. The victims were horribern. The victims were horrib y mangied. Beveral persons who ixplosion were injured.

All of the injured were removed to the Chillicothe hospital and nearly very doctor in the city was called.

THIS MAN'S BAUGHTER STELLA WAS VERY ILL

to Could not Endure to be Without Her and Swallowed Cyanide. Niantic, March 30 .- D. E Stone.

rears old, a farmer, committed suic de resterday by taking cyanide of potastium at his home on the Spritualist camp-ground here. Mr. Stone had been lespondent for the past few days over the illness of his daughter. Stella who the illness of his daughter, Stella who is in the New Haven hospital, and durage the day remained in his room. His life fearing that he was ill called Dr. M. Barrett who on his arrival went before's room. The door was lock of the when the doctor called Stone's have he was answered by a shot from the lower part of the door. A deputy the lower part of the door. A deputy the lower part of the door. A deputy of the lower part of the door. A deputy of the lower part of the door. A deputy of the lower part of the door. A deputy of the lower part of the door. A deputy of the lower part of the door. A deputy of the lower part of the door. A deputy of the lower part of the door. A deputy of the lower part of the door. A deputy of the lower part of the door.

Breaking into the room they found Stone lying dead on a bed a small class lying on a table near the bed and which had contained the vas found on the bed near Stone's left

He leaves a widow and seven chil-fren, and previous to his coming here fived in Cheshire.

DEATH FROM A BROKEN HEART

ROBERT THOMPSON SUCCUMBE TO GRIEF FOR BOY SUP-POSED TO HAVE BEEN

ASKS $10,000 OF MOTHER-IN-LAW FOR WIFE'S LOVE

Havener Brings Unique Suit Against Brass City Woman

Wife Was at One Time in An Insane Asylum, But on Application of Mother Was Released-Now Refuses to Live With Hus-

New Haven, March 30.—Accused of stealing the affections of her daughter, Mrs. Calvin D. Pinney, a well-known woman who resides in Waterbury has been made defendant in a suit brought Mess.

Henrietta, Okia., March 30.—Like a amous old time General, Chief Crazy inake, having marched up the hill, is eady to march down. From the rocky avine where the old chief and h.s iondescript band of Creeks, Seminoles and helf, breeds took their day.

ind negro half-breeds took their disserate stand in their eworts to overhrow William Roward Taft's governnent, came the silent wig-waging of the white flag.

Chief Crazy Snake is ready to surender. Jack Thompson, whose Indian iame is "Little War Hop" has come from headquarters with a prace pipe.

First Selectman Main of West Haven where the couple then resided had dence in that borough, but Judge Stud-ley of the probate court thought that the conditions warranted the commit-ment and ordered it.

Not long after that Mrs. Pinney car ried away her daughter from the asy um, but the authorities compelled he return for five weeks more.

The plaintiff alleges that Mrs. Pinney made false statements to his wife regarding his conduct and misrepresented the conditions of the affair so that she would not return to him. It is said that she ered her sanity.

NO ATTACK UPON THE EX-PRESIDENT

"Nonsense to Send out Such a Story, Says Mr. Roosevelt at the Azores.

Porta, Asores, March 30.—Ex-President Roosevelt took occasion during the few hours that the steamer Hamburg stopped here en route to Naples, to express his indignation over the reports cabled from here that an attempt had been made on his life on the Hamburg by an insane Italian named Guiseppe Tosti, a steerage passenger. "It's nonsense to send out such a story," Mr. Roosevelt said with characteristic energy. "The man may have made the remark credited to him, but I never saw him and didn't know in the little stove which his host replen-Porta, Azores, March 30.-Ex-Presibut I never saw him and didn't know anything about it until the poor fellow was put in Irons."

The Hamburg's captain also minimized the Tosti affair and it was by his orders that none of the correspondents were allowed to send back a wire less message concerning the incident. Not until the Hamburg touched at this port and a telegraph office available tiev inactivity aboard the Hamburg has increased his weight slightly des-pite the fact that he is undergoing a rgelme of two meals a day but he says he will quickly reach his "real fighting weight,' when he reaches Africa.

Bears the Bignature Cart III to Kind You Have Always Bought of Cart III to Live

MISS SAFFORD EOUND HER LOVER FALSE She Also Selected End by Dose of Burning Carbolic Acid.

Middletown Conn. March 60.—Because she learned that the man she was to marry this week already had a wife and six children, Miss Mary C. Safford of Rockfall, in a fit of despondency, ended her life Saturday afterneon by taking expects. pondency, ended her ite Saturday atternoon by taking carbolic acid.

Miss Safford, who was 43 years old, kept house for her father, and they had as a boarder John Cramer, night watchman for the Rogers Manufacturing company. He had lived in Rock-

About ten days ago her father learned that Cramer had a wife and six children, who are at present living in Philadelphia. As soon as the fact be-came known, Cramer disappeared. Miss Safford became very desponden and Saturday evening about 6 o'c'ock her father found her lying dead on her bed, with a bottle beside her that had contained carbo'ic acid.

Cramer 's about 53 years old. It is not known where he has gone.

POWERS PRESENT NOTE TO SERVIA

Belgrade, March 30 .- The note of the Powers to Servia, the presentation of which was delayed owing to the Russian minister not having received in structions, was formally del vere the Foreign Office to-day. The Br French, German, Russian and Italian ministers joined in the presentation.
The Foreign Office reasserts its willingness to abide by the terms of the Prince Alexander, his younger brother, exchanged titles this morning as a re sult of an edict issued by King Peter The exchange was made in order that the name of the younger brother might come before that of George as he'r to the throne.

ELLERY KENT ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

Rutland, Vt., March 30.—Ellery Kent, 30, was placed on trial in the county court here today before Judge E. L. Waterman of Brattleboro on the charge of murdering Miss Delia B. Conzdon, a deaf mute, at the farm house where she lived alone in the mountain town of East Wallingford July 24, 1908. The purpose of the mur-der was criminal assault. Kent, who was at the time an escaped inmate of the Waterbury Insane Asylum, led the Lowell, March 30.—Grief stricken for the loss of a baby boy who may be the prey of kidnappers, Robert Thompson, 70 years old, is dead here to-day and physicians Eny, single trom stroken heart. Thompson lived at the borne of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Howerth, from where his son William, aged two years and two months has been distinct for several days. farmers armed themselves and assisted the posses of officers aided by bloodhounds in hunting down Kent

but he was not captured until he stole a believe that the boy was the Marrimae river, not home. The boy's playently possed to the river where farmers armed themselves and assisted the posses of officers aided by bloodhounds in hunting down Kent
but he was not captured until he stole a bicyc'e at Pittsfield Mass. October 21. being recognized by a deep scar on his forehead received when he jumped from a moving train in trying to escape from an officer for a former offense.

Together they read the papers. Their

JANE CABLE

GEORGE BARR MCCUTCHEON Author of "Beverly of Graustark,"

Copyright, 1906, by Dodd, Mead &

CHAPTER XX.

RAYDON sat with h

chin in his hands, dull stricken, crushed. had heard the story of his father's basene from Frances Cable, and he had been told the true story of Jane. From Righy he learned of the vile transact tions in which his father had dealt At first be could scarcely believe his own ears, but in the end he saw that but half the truth could be told. It was past midnight when he left David Cable's-not to go to his own home, but to that of Ellas Droom. He knew now that the newspaper would devote columns to the "sensation in suffer agonies untold, but he would not blame his father for that; he knew that arrest and disgrace hung over the tall gray man who had shown his true and amazing side at last; he knew that shame and humiliation were to be his own share in the division. Down somewhere in his aching heart be nourished the hope that Eliss Droom ould ease the pain of these wretched

As he traversed the dark street across town he was vaguely wonder ing whether Jane's eves would ever lose the pained, hopeless expression he ished from time to time during the weary hours.

Droom answered his questions with a direct tenderness that surprised even himself. He kept much to himself, however, and advised the young man to reserve judgment until after he had heard his father's side of the story. "I've been loyal to James Bansemer, Graydon, and I'll still be loyal to him. He's not done right by other people, but he has tried to do right by you." "If he wanted to do right by me, why did he not tell me of Jane's-misfortune?" exclaimed the young man hitterly.

"Because he really wanted you to marry her. Anybody can see she is without a flaw. That's the truth, Graydon. Your father was wrong in his desire to make capital of it in connection with Mrs. Cable. I told him so. don't believe he knew just what he was doing; he was so used to success you see. Can't you go to sleep, boy? You need to." "God. no!"

"I'd advise you to go home and talk it over with your father." "Tomorrow will be time enough-after the newspapers are out. I can't bear to think of the diagrace. Harbert has been interviewed, they say. He's told everything."

"Talk to your father tonight, my boy. There may be may be warrant

The young man dropped his head on his arm and burst into tears. Old Droom puffed vigorously at his pipe. his eyes shifting and uncomfortable Twice he attempted to speak and could not. In both instances he arose and poked the fire. At last the young man's choking sobs grew less violent Droom cleared his throat with raucous emphasis, took his snaky gaze from a print on the wall representing "Dawn" and spoke:

"You wouldn't think it to look at me now, or any other time for that matter, but I loved a woman once a long time ago. She never knew it. I didn't expect her to love me. How could I? Don't cry, Graydon. You're not like I was. The girl you love loves you. Cheer up. If I were you I'd go ahead and make her my wife. She's good enough, I'll swear!"

"She says she can't marry me, Good heavens, Elias! You don't know what a blow it was to her. It almost killed her. And my own father! Oh, it was terrible!"

Elias Doom did not tell him-nor had he ever told any one but himselfthat the woman he loved was the boy's mother. He loved her before and after she married James Bansemer He never had faltered in his love and reverence for her.

Graydon waited in his rooms until the old man returned with the morning papers. As Droom placed them on the table beside him he grinned cheerfully. "Big headlines, eh? But these are not a circumstance to what they will be. These articles deal only with the great mystery concerning the birth of one of the 'most beautiful and popular voung women in Chicago,' Wait-wait until the Bansemer smash comes to reenforce the story! Fine reading, eh?" "Don't, Elias, for heaven's sake. don't!" cried the young man. "Have you no soft spot in your heart? I be lieve you enjoy all this. Look! Look! what it says about her! The whole shameful story of that scene last night! There was a reporter there when it happened.'

tions that were going to the public.
The old clerk chuckled and philoso-

Every one of these papers proph sled other and more sensational de velopments before the day was over It promised to be war to the knife between David Cable, president of the Pacific, Lakes and Atlantic, and the man Bansemer. In each interview with Cable be was quoted as saying emphatically that the adoption of Jane had been made with his knowledge and consent. The supposed daughter was the only one to whom the star tling revelations were a surprise. There also was mention of the fact that the young woman had immediately broken her engagement with James Bansemer's son. There were pletures of the leading characters in the drama

"I can't stay in Chicago after all this," exclaimed Graydon, springing to his feet, his hands clinched in despair "To be pointed out and talked about To be pitled and scorned! To see the degradation of my own father! I'll go anywhere, just so it is away from Chi-Droom forget his desire to scoff. His sardonic smile dwindled into a ludicrously pathetic look of dismay. He begged the young man to think twice before he did anything "foolish." "In any event," he implored, "let me get you some breakfast, or at least a cup

In the end he helped Graydon into his coat and glided off down Wells street with him. It was 7 o'clock. and every corner newsstand glowered back at them with black frowns as they looked at the piles of papers. Two rough looking men walking ahead of them were discussing the sensation. A saloon keeper shouted to them, "It don't always happen over on de west side, does it?"

Graydon went to the office of Clegg, Groll & Davidson early and arranged his affairs, so that they could be taken up at once by another, and then, avoiding his fellow workers as much as possible, presented himself to Mr. Clegg at 10 o'clock. Without hesitation he announced his intention to give up his place in the office. All argument put forth by his old friend and employer went for naught. The cause of his action was not discussed, but it was un derstood.

"If you ever want to come back to us, Graydon, we will welcome you the young man. "I'm going away to-with open arms. It isn't as bad as night." you think."

"You don't understand, Mr. Clegg, was all that Graydon could say. Then he hurried off to face his fo

James Bansemer, haggard from loss of sleep and from fury over the alienation of his son, together with the feat of what the day might bring, was pac ing the floor of his private office. in regard to his son. When he heard Graydon's voice in the other room his face brightened, and he took severa quick steps toward the door, checked himself suddenly with the remembrance that his son had turned against him the night before, and his face hardened.

Graydon found him standing stern and unfriendly before the steam radi ator in the darkest corner of the room, his hands behind his back. The young man plumped down heavily in his father's desk chair. "Why didn't you come home

"I hated the thought of it" be an "You've listened to their side of the story. You're a splendid son, you are! encered the father. "There is nothing base and unprin cipled in their side of the story. They have tried to shield her. They have never harmed her. But you! Why. father, you've blighted her life for ever. They were going to tell her in day or so, and they could have made it easy for her. Not like this! Why. in heaven's name, did you strike ber town. She's ostracised, that's what she is, and she's the best girl that ever lived!" "Oh, you think they would have told her, eh? No! They would have let ber marry"-

"Well, and what was your position? Why were you so considerate up to last night? If you knew, why did you let me go on so blindly? The truth is father, if you must have it, you have acted like a scoundrel." James Bansemer glared at his son with murder in his eyes. "I wouldn't have believed the other things they say of you if I hadn't this to break down my faith. I heard this with my own ears. It was too contemptible to forget in a lifetime. I did not come here to discuss it with you The thing is done. I came here to tell you that I am going to leave Chicago You won't go, so I will." Bansemer still glared at him, but there was amazement mingling with rage in his eyes. "I can't look a soul in the face I am ashamed to meet the Cables. Good Lord, I'm afraid even to think of Jane."

"I suppose you—you would marry her, like a fool, even now," muttere the father.

"Marry her? Of course I would. love her more than ever. I'd give my life for her: I'd give my soul to ease the pain ou have thrust upon her But it's over between us. Don't let our affairs worry you. She has ended it I don't blame her. How could she marry your son? I have hoped that I might not be your son, after all."

Bansemer leaned heavily against the radiator, gasping for breath. Then he staggered to the couch and dropped upon it, meaning.

"Graydon, Graydon! Don't say that Don't! I'll make everything right. I'll try to undo it all! My boy, you are the only thing on earth I love. I've been heartless to all the rest of the world. but I love you. Don't turn against me." The son stood looking at him in dull wonder. His heart was touched. He had not thought that this stern man could weep; he began to see the misery that was breaking him.

"Dad. don't in the said, starting toward bim. "I'm sorry. I'm sorry for you." Bansemer leaped to his feet, his mood changing like a flash.

"I don't want your pity. I wan your love and loyalty. I didn't mean to be weak. Will you leave Chicago with me? I must go. We'll go at once anywhere, only together.

Graydon. "Not like a criminal?" You won't?" There was no Go! Leave me alone. I had prayed that you might not have been like this. Go! I have important business to attend to at once." He cast his gaze toward the drawer in which the pistol lay., "I don't expect to see you again. Take this message to the Cables. Say that I am the only living soul who knows the names of that girl's father and mother. God alone can drag them from me!"

Graydon was silent, stunned, hewildered. His father was trembling before him, and he opened his lips to utter the question that meant so much if the answer came.

"Don't ask me!" cried Bansemer. "You would be the last I'd tell." "I don't believe you know!" cried Graydon.

"Ah. you think I'll tell you?" triimphantly. "I don't want to know." down, his moody gaze upon his father Neither spoke for many minutes. Nelther had the courage. James Bansemer finally started up with a quick look at the door. Droom was speaking to ome one in the outer office.

to be slone." "Father, are you-are you afraid of these charges?" His father laughed nounced that she had but one desire shortly and extended his hand to the on earth, and that was to go to Mayoung man.

"Go now," he said harshly. "I want Chicago, I'll stay! Goodby, Graydon!" "Goodby, ded!"

They shook hands without flinching. and the young man left the room. On "Where do you expect to go?" "I don't know. Droom was talking to a youth wh held a notebook in his band and who appeared frightened and embarrassed

Graydon shook hands with the Droom followed him into the "If you ever need a friend, Gray don," he said in a low voice, "call on me. If I'm not in jail, I'll help you."

Half an hour later Graydon rang the Cables' doorbell. "Miss Jane is not seeing any one t day, sir," said the servant.

"Say that I must see her." protests

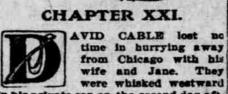

"Bo is she, sir."

"I don't know, sir, California, mor than likely. Mrs. Cable and she wi be gone for some time." "Did she tell you not to admit me he asked, white faced and calm.

"Yes, str. Nobody, sir." He turned down the steps and walk d away. That afternoon be enlisted and the following morning was going westward with a party of recruits, bound eventually for service with the reg ulars in the Philippines.

wife and Jane. They were whisked westward in his private car on the second day after the Bansemer exposure. Broken spirited. Jane acquiesced in all their plans. She seemed as one in a stupor, comprehending yet unresponsive to pain that enveloped her.

"I can't see any one that I know here." she said listlessly. "Oh, the of nothing else; her eagerness had thought of what they are saying!" They did not tell her that Graydon had enlisted as a private soldier in the United States army. Jane only knew sinister existed. Cable's devotion to her was beautiful. He could not have been more tender had she been his own daughter that she loved him and that the bar instead of his wife's imposition. Jane was ill in Pasadena for many weeks. Her depressed condition made her recovery doubtful. It was plain to two persons, at least, that she did not care whether she lived or died. The physicians were puzzled, but no explanation was offered by the Cables. It was not until certain Chicago sojourners generously spread the news that the cause of her breakdown became apparent to the good doctors. Before many days the girl who sat wan and distrait upon the flower shaded plazza was an object of curiosity to fashion able Pasadena. As soon as she was strong enough to endure the trip the bunted trio forsook Pasadena and fled northward.

San Francisco afforded relief in privacy. Jane's spirits began to revive. There had not been nor was there ever to be any mention of that terrible night and its revelations. What she may have felt and suffered in secret could only be conjectured by those who loved her. Bansemer's name was never uttered. His fate remained unknown to her. The faraway, unhappy look in her eyes proved to them that Gravdon was never out of her thoughts.

David Cable was in Chicago when Mrs. Cable received word from her sister, once Kate Coleman, that she soon would reach San Francisco with her husband, bound for the Philippines. Kate was the wife of a West Pointer who had achieved the rank of colonel in the volunteers by virtue of political necessity. His regiment had been ordered to the islands, and she was accompanying him with their daughter, a girl of sixteen.

Colonel Harbin had seen pleasan service at the eastern posts, where his wife had attained a certain kind of social distinction in the army fast set strict disciplinarian on and off the comments varied. The young man can escape if we start now. Come!" field. He expected to be a brigadier . Perhaps her most devoted admirer grithed and grouned under the reveia. "I won't go that way!" exclaimed general if fortune and favoritism sup was Lieutenant Bray. Good looking ported him long enough. Mrs. Harbin and coming from an excellent southe could never be anything more than a family, he was a great favorite timation of distinction was concerned. the rest. She would have liked His daughter, Ethel, had, by means of still better had he been able to no uncertain favoritism, advanced a a tendency to boast of the stock fr few points ahead of her mother and which he had sprung. The knowledge might have ranked as sergeant in the of her disadvantages in life, the con family corps.

Mrs. Harbin played cards, drank cers, got talked about with pleasing emphasis and was as happy as any subordinate could be. They had not even thought of such a thing as divorce, and the whole army wondered and expressed disgust. The army's appetite for scandal is surpassed only by its bravery is war. It is even hinted that the latter is welcomed as a loophole for the former. War brings

The arrival of the Harbins and staff of gay young cadets fresh from the banks of the Hudson put new life into the recluses. The regiment was to remain at the Presidio for several weeks before sailing. One of the lieutenants was a Chicago boy and an acquaintance of Graydon Bansemer. It was from him that Jane learned that her sweetheart was a soldier in the service, doubtless now in Luzon. A week before the sailing of Colone Harbin's transport Jane suddenly an on earth, and that was to go to Manila with her aunt. She did not pre "Don't worry about me. They can't sent her plea with the usual claim down James Bansemer. You may leave that she wanted to be of service to her country. She was not asking to go out as a heroine of the ordinary type. Instead she simply announced that she wanted to go as a temporary member the threshold the father called after of Colonel Harbin's family, to endure their hardships and to enjoy their enthusiasms. Mrs. Cable recognized the true motive, however.

Her pleadings were in vain. The Harbins had lucklessly urged Jane to join them. Telegrams flew back and forth across the continent, and David Cable came on to present his feeble

When the great transport sailed away, Jane Cable was one of her passengers, the ward of the regiment. "It's just for a little while, dad." she said wistfully at the dock; "a few months. I'll think of you every minute

I'm away." The blood of the man in the service was calling to her. The ocean was between them. The longing to be near him, to trend the same soil, had conquered in the eternal battle of love After all, no matter how the end was attained, she was a creature of life. brought into the world to love and to be loved. She put the past behind ber and began to build a new futurefuture in which the adoration of Graydon Bansemer was the foundation The hope that makes all human aver ages was at the work of reconstru tion; youth was the builder, The months of destruction had not left a hopeless ruin as the heritage of dead

The world grew brighter as the ship forged westward. Each day sent warmer blood into her veins and a deeper light into her eyes. The new life was not inspired by the longing to be his wife, but to see him again and to comfort him. She would be no

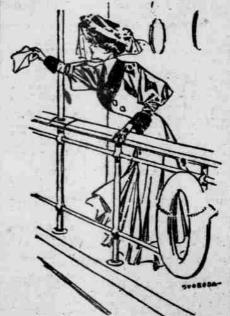

At last one bot, soft morning is early July the great transport slipped past Corregidor and turned its nose ward the anchorage which ended the long voyage. The city of Manila lay stretched out before them-Manila, the new American capital.

The troops were marched off to quar ters, and the Harbins, with Jane Ca ble, repaired at once to the Oriente where they were to live prior to tak ing a house in Ermita or San Miguel. The campaign was not being pushed vigorously at this time. It was the rainy season. Desultory fighting was going on between the troops and the insurgents. There were numerous scouting and exploring expeditions into the enemy's country.

A week elapsed before Jane could find the opportunity to make inquiries concerning the whereabouts of Gray don Bansemer. Her thoughts had been been tempered by the diffidence of the overzealous. She and pretty Ethel Harbin had made life endurable for the gay young officers who came over on the ship. The pretty wives of certain captains and lieutenants had small scope for their blandishments at manage in space so small. The two girls were therefore in a state of slege most of the time. The abject follow ing fell away perceptibly when the broader field of action on abore gave their married sisters a chance to ma-Leuver with some degree of security. A faithful few remained in train, however. Ethel Harbin, like the ingenue in the play, had each finger clumstly but tightly wrapped with a breathing uniform of blue. It must be admitted in shame, however, that she changed the bandages often and without con science or ceremony.

Jane's admirers were in love with her. She was not the sort to inspire

When the great transport sailed away. Jane Cable was one of her passengers. She was not especially enamored of idle fancies. In any event, it looked the prospect shead of her in the Phil. a long time to these chaps before they ippines. But the new colonel was a could get back to the States, and she was worth while.

all. Jane liked him better than any of trast between their respective positions, all tended to emphasise the highballs, firted with the younger off- of fate, and she often sound berself woudering how this sprig of true aristocracy would conduct himself if he discovered that, after all, she was only

It was Lieutenant Bray who me inquiries at general headquarters and found, after considerable trouble, item Graydon Bansemer's company was in the north, subject to the requirement of Young, chief of scouts.

Irksome were the lazy summer months for Jane. She tired of the atsentions of men; she sickened with longing and anxiety. Day after day she prayed that the troops in the north might be relieved. She watched for the order that would call for their return from the wet lands above. Sick ness was prevalent among the fighting corps; the wet season had undermined the health of many. Constant new came down to Manila of the miner an gagements, and she looked at every report for news of Graydon. Colone Harbin occasionally had private of vices from the north. She heard Graydon's bravery more than once a glowed with pride: Down in her tir anxious heart she was wondering were possible for her to go to the fre in any capacity.

At last with October came the w ing of the rainy season. Novemberought active fighting. A general movement of the troops was dis-against Aguinaldo. In his prime eader be controlled the porth, and b capture was imperative. Lawton and Young began operations on the McArthur on the center, with Who ton pushing forward on the ex-left. The insurgents fell back Tariac. There were many big fights San Jacinto and other places no mous in history.

The Red Cross society held for Malolos, reaching gradually into t came into the hospitals daily and in larger numbers tuan one would supposed. The villages, or barrios, all along the line of advance saw convents turned into hospitals. As as possible the nurses were burried to them. Men and women in this nable service did beroic, faithful work both for the white and the brown men went down. From the field hospit the men were taken to the co and treated until they were able to ! moved to Manila.

Further north fied Aguinaldo and the Filipinos. Wheaton was or to cut off his retreat; Young was ki Cunningham took charge of the so who scoured the country. Parties ten to difteen picked men fell out savance of the main body, seeking develop the enemy and his defeden fire of ambush, exposed to selves to all the treacheries of fare and afterward were muster with a kind word from the departm.
They were the men who tested the ritory. It was with one of the scouting parties that Graydon I semer ventured far into the es country early in November.

WOMAN WOUNDED GETTING DECOY IN BLACKMAIL PLOT

Mrs. Stringer Accused of Writing Latter

Demanding $30,000. Took Dummy Package and is Shot Trying to Escape.

President of Washington, Indiana, Bank the Victim Blackmailers Were After-Threats to Biow up His Home and His Bank With Nitroglycerise.

Washington, Ind., March 30 .- Mrs. Valla Stringer, a highly respected school teacher, lies dangerously woundclose range. Flirtations were hard to ed in the county jail accused of an alleged sensational attempt at blackmailing Nathan G. Read, president mailing Nathan G. Read, president of the Washington National Bank. While removing a decoy package placed by Read where the letter ordered it to be left, Mrs. Stringer, it is alleged, was surprised by officers. The womas started to run and was shot down Mrs. Stringer is accessed by the police of writing the following letter, which she signed:

"Nathan Read" Deer Strut and she signed:

"Nathan Read: Dear Sir—I am in need of money and you will put 120,000 at the east gate of the High school building on the north side of the post at 8 o'clock. After you leave the money go down Walnut street and go quick. I have recently bought one gallon of nitro-glycerine and unless this is done I will blow up your home, that of your son Lewis and the National Bank, and if you fail to do this or if any of the cops are around to tional Bank, and if you fail to do that or if any of the cops are around to watch it will be a sorry day for you. (Signed) One Who Means Business."

Mrs. Stringer denies that she wrote the letter. Her explanation is that a man whose identity she refuses to reveal met her in the afternoon and offered her $5 if she would get a package that was left at the place designated. She consented.

At midnight the police arrested January or the street of the solice arrested January or the street of th At midnight the police arrested Joseph Sparks, son of John T. Sparks, who committed suicide in Terre Haute

last week. Sparks is alleged to be the enamoured of the Stringer woman. GRANTED DIVORCE AND ALIMONY

Winsted, March 30 .- Judge Curtis in the Superior court to-day granted a divorce, and $12,000 alimony to Grace divorce and $12,000 alimony to Grace Brian Lewis from her husband, Charles W. Lewis, a wealthy Torrington manufacturer. Mrs. Lewis in her petition, charged her husband with cruelty and stated that he had frequently the true ed to kill her while in an intoxical state. Her testimony was corroborated by a hospital nurse.

SIOO-DR. E. DETCHON'S ANTI-DIURETIC may be worth to you more a viou if you have a child who colle bedding from inconfinence of maker during sleep. Cures old and your like. It arrests the trouble at con-st. Sold by L. F. Curtis. Grand wide-port. Cons.